DEFENDS PRIZEFIGHTING.

THE REV. MR. JEFFRIES FINDS BIBLICAL JUSTIFICATION FOR IT.

He Says Sacred History Is Illuminated With Championship Contests-Cites the Battle Between the Son of Light and the Son of CHICAGO, May 20.—There is Biblical justification for prizefighting, according to the Rev. Alexander Jeffries. He knows more about the subject than most ministers of the Gospel, because he has one son who is the world's heavycked up. weight champion and another son who is described as a "comer" According to his reasoning, the world began on the prizefighting plan, and all of the shining spots in sacred history are illuminated by championship contests. "God had two sons and one was against the other," said the Rev. Mr. Jeffries, as he stood in the centre of a group of prizefighters in Tommy Ryan's training quarters.

"One was the Son of Light, the Lord of Hosts, and the other was the Son of Darkness, the prince of the bottomless pit. One was opposed to the other and they fought and the best son

Most of those who were listening to him had never heard of that fight before and they crowded eagerly about him. Mr. Rvan, who is working hard to get to the point where he can knock the block off Kid McCoy, quit the punching bag to listen. Jack Jeffries, the youngest on of the evangelist, who is looking for a chance to take on a limited round contest with change to take on a limited round contest with some other heavyweight, was present, and the trainers and rubbers and other useful young men in training quarters all gathered about the Rev. Mr. Jeffries. "Then Adam had two sons and they fought," continued Mr. Jeffries. Which got the decision?" asked one of the rubbers.

"And there was Abraham, who had two sons," Mr Jeffries went on without answering. "One of them was against the other; and Jacob had two sons and one of them was a bond son. So it soes on down through the Jewish history." "Then prizefighting is a good, old institution?" he was asked.

"Doesn't the Bible say there shall be cities against cities and friends against friends and nations against nations?"

against eities and friends against friends and nations against nations?"

"Then you are not opposed to your son's career in the ring?"

"I don't want to see him work too hard, but a man has to work unless he does as I do. That is work, and it may be honest work. All I am afraid of is that my bors will get to drinking. If they don't do that I have nothing to say against their following the calling they have chosen." Mr. Jeffries laughed to scorn the idea that he was in Chicago to attend the Methodist Con-

Why, ail I want is to get just six hours in this Methodist conference, to tell them what I think about them, he said. I would show them in that time that they are alot of hypocrites. If they wont give me six hours, I'll do it in three, or in two hours.
"To what denomination do you belong?" he was asked.
"Denomination? Why, there are 664 denomination." Denomination? Why, there are 664 denominations, all the children of Rome."
Turning to his son Jack he said: "If you ever join a church I'll take this cane and give you a trouncing, sure."

Jack laughed while his sturdy father gripped him by the shoulder and shook him, and it takes a powerful man to do that "Did you ever have any fist fights?" he was Well. I never let any of the fellows put me on

SUSPECTED OF COUNTERFEITING But Just Had Tinners' Tools-Family Held for

Receiving Stolen Goods.

John H. Steadman, his wife Annie, and Marion Weston, all of 225 West Sixteenth street, were arrested on Saturday night at the request of William Thompson of 228 West Thirty-ninth street, who informed the police of the West Twentieth street station that the Steadmans had in their possession clothes and jewelry which on March 15 were stolen from the house of Jennie Lawrence of 245 West. Thirty-seventh street. When the police made the arrests, they found not only the property described by Thompson, but also a number of tools which they believed had been used in making counter-fet coins. This discovery caused them to watch the place after the prisoners and the suspicious articles had been removed. In the middle of the night Thompson appeared at the house. He went to the flat occupied by PROPOSALS FOR MILITARY SUPPLIES

Hazen of the United States Secret Service was notified to the arrests under the impression that he would be interested in the prisoners and their tools. The Chief said last night, however, that on examining the tools that the police had thought were a counterfeiting outfit he had found them to be nothing but ordinary tinners' tools, such as anybody could buy. There was not an unlawful tool in the lot, the Chief said, and as far as he was concerned he would have nothing to do with the case.

"Whatever there may be in the case," said Detective Keogh, who made the arrests, "jealousy is the motive that has brought it to light. Steadman had Thompson locked up not long ago. Now Thompson is trying to get Steadman out of the way."

"Before I moved in here," said Mrs. Lawrence when asked about the robbery, "a Mrs. Monroe lived here, Last Saturday night, Mr. Thompson called to see me. He introduced himself and said that he could take me to where my missing clothes were. He explained that, thinking that Mrs. Monroe still lived here, he had crawled into my flat through an open rear window on the firescape and taken my clothes away. And he told me that Steadman had alienated the affections of his wife and to get him out of the way had caused his arrest and had kept him twenty-nine days in the Tombs on a charge of grand larceny.

"The reason Thompson was arrested," Mrs. Lawrence said, "was that he had forgotten some papers and tried to get them by crawling into the flat through the window. He will be descharged all right," she added Steadman said at the station that he was one of the crew that blew up the Merrimac in Santlago Harbor under Lieut Robson. He looked big and stalwart like a sailor and declared that he had received two silver medals for what he had done."

It Involved Drama and Gymnastics and Seemed to Work All Right. Sergt. Fred Carson was behind the desk in the Tenderloin police station at 5 o'clock yesterday morning trying to keep awake until his relief appeared, when the station house door opened and a man of about 30 years walked briskly in. His linen was a little rusty, but his clothes were good. He walked erest but looked troubled. His right cheek was bruised and puffed out as if he had fallen or run into something harder. "Sarge," he said to Carson, "I want this man

"Where is he?" asked Carson wearily. "Right here beside me," said the stranger. 'He's been following me ever since I left St. Sergt. Carson went around to the front of the look how it is swollen. He tried to hit he on the other side of the face, but I ducked and dragged him here."

While he talked the man looked vindictively at the space to the right of him.

"If I lock that fellow up will you feel relieved?" asked Carson.

"You bet I will," was the response. "I want him locked up and locked up quick You ought to club him too, for the way he joited me."

The sergeant pressed an electric bell summoning Mark Haggerty, the doorman. He caught Carson's wink.

"See that bully standing beside this gentleman, Mark?" said Carson.

Haggerty nodded.
"Lock him up," said Carson. "If he gives you any trouble, use the stick on him."

Haggerty stepped forward and grabbed a large chunk of air. Then began a flerce struggle to get his lightweight prisoner to a cell, llaggerty jabbed him, threw in upper cuts and straight-arm blows, grunting loudly all the while. The troubled stranger stood by watching the one man struggle with a good deal of give.

He banged brough the swinging doors with a great racket through the swinging doors with a great racket and kept up the noise when he got inside. He added a few yells of his own to the din and threw several chairs across the floor to make the fight sound realistic. He finally gave vent to a despairing cry for mercy and banged the door leading from the section room to the prison with great force.

"You bet I do," said the stranger, wiping the perspiration from his brow 'I'm much obliged to you, too. You're a gentleman, sir."

He reached over the desk and put out his hand. Carson shook it and he hurried away very much relieved.

"Guess he's got 'em, aint he Sarge?" asked Haggerty, poking his head through the swinging doors as the stranger went out.

"He had the D. I's when he eams in," said Carson, whose thoughts had again reverted to the coming of his relief, "but I guess he's all right now."

HONOR FARRAGUT'S MEMORY.

Exercises Yesterday at the Admiral's Statue -Col. Gruber the Orator.

The Farragut statue in Madison Square was decorated yesterday with a wreath and the national colors by veterans of the Navy from Naval Post 516, G. A. R., the Associated Veterans of Farrragut's Fleet, and Farragut Squadron No. 1, United States Veteran Navy. With the delegations from these organizations, who marched to the Farragut monument from the rendezvous at the cottage in Union Square, were a detachment of blue ackets from the navy yard and members of the Navai Cadets' Auxiliary to Farragut Squadron No. 1. The F. H. Grove, Chaplain Robert Edwards and Col. F. H. Grove, Chaplain Robert Edwards and Col. Abraham Gruber. Col. Gruber, who was announced as the orator of the day, said in part. ## DECIDES AGAINST CURTIS LAW.

Case That It Is Unconstitutional. VINITA, I. T., May 20. Judge John R. Thomas holds that the Curtis law is unconstitutional. In a decision handed down at Wagner, I. T., in the case of John McGrath vs. Lem Aldridge et al, he declares that one citizen cannot take it upon himself to determine that another man has in his possession more than his proportionate share of the public domain. The suit involved possession of Cherokee lands, the defendant having taken possession of a part of plaintiff's land, alleging in justification thereof that the latter was in nossession of more land than he should have under the Curis law.

Judge Thomas says in part: The Supreme Court of the United States and other courts of last resort have decided that an act of Congress is not due process of law. The Curtis bill is very sweeping. It is the first serious attempt the Court has ever seen of Congress attempting to repeal an amendment to the Constitution by an act of Congress. This land was bought and paid for by the Cherokee Indians with their own money and is their own property. It was patented to them and is a vested property right. The Government cannot plead that these are infants, since the Government by its own contract recognized their right to contract." upon himself to determine that another man

DIAMOND COAL BREAKER BURNED it Was One of the (Largest in the Coal

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 20.-The Diamond Breaker, owned by the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company, was destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire was discovered at about midnight and the massive building continued burning until sunlight. The firemen could do nothing toward saving it on account of the heat, which prevented them approaching nearer than 400 feet, and they confined themselves to saving the buildings which, to the distance of half a mile, were threatened by the sparks, carried along by the gale that was blowing. The whole city was lighted by the fire, the flames rising 200 feet in the air. The breaker was built in 1872, and at that time was the largest in the coal regions, but it has not been used for the past ten years. Much of the machinery remained in it. The loss is about $30,000. It is supposed the fire was accidentally $30,000. It is supposed the fire was accidentally seen in the coal regions in the coal regions. started by tramps who have been slee the place. ### THREW HER MONEY AWAY.

Crazy Young Woman With a Handful of Bills

Enlivens a Trolley Journey. NEW ROCHELLE, May 20 .- A young woman, having in her possession a big roll of bills, got on a trolley car bound from Mount Vernon to this city about 10 o'clock last night. She drew out a five-dollar bill, and with it offered to pay her fare. The conductor handed it back, telling her he could not change it. She became wild with rake, leaped upon the seat and yelled. Several men attempted to induce her to sit down, but she kicked at them. Pulling out a bankbook from her waist, she waved it at the conductor. Then she threw bills at the other passengers and out of a window. In this city she was arrested by Policeman Myers and placed in a padded cell. The bankbook, which she still carried in her hand, was No. 304.471 of the Dry Dock Savings Institution and bore the name of Josefa Juren. It she wed a balance on deposit of over $500. She had $23.60 in cash with her. She was put in carge of a matron and will be examined tomorrow to determine whether or not she is insane. drew out a five-dollar bill, and with it offered

Agent Here of the Revolutionists Notifies the Company That the Grant Was Beyond the Power of President San Clemente to Make Dr. A. J. Restrepo, who was recently sent to his country by the provisional Government of the Colombian revolutionists, forwarded yesterday to the President of the French Panama Canal Company in Paris an official protest against the contract entered into between that company and the present government of Colombia for the extension of the time for constructing the Panama canal. A cablegram warning he company that the revolutionists when they came into power would not recognize the concession, for which $5,000,000 francs is to be paid, was sent to President Hutin of the Canal company on Saturday. It read as follows:

President Panama Canal Company, Paris: The extension obtained at Bogota is void. The victorious revolutionists will not recognize it. Do ot deliver your money to the Government of President San Clemente. The coming convention or congress will reject that contract. Will send protest

A copy of the protest was sent also to the State Department at Washington to guard against any trouble that may arise between the Governments of France and Colombia. The present Government is anxious to get the 5,000,000 francs to help in putting down the

The revolutionists, who, according to Dr. Restrepo, will overthrow the existing Govern-Restrepo, will overthrow the existing Government within two months, are anxious that the United States shall undertake the building of the canal. The protest sent by Dr. Restrepo to the French Panama Canal Company says that President San Clemente had no powers to make such a concession, the powers residing in Congress only, that the revolution which augmented his powers in some directions did not add to them in this direction; that the French company is perfectly well acquainted with these facts, and that as it is not acting in good fauth in contracting with persons with these facts, and that as it is not acting in good fauth in contracting with persons known to it not to be qualified by law to commit colombia to such a contract, it will bave no grievance when the revolutionists come into power and declare the concession void. He concludes.

"Whether said new government shall modify the present constitution of the country through the national convention, or whether the extension is to be considered by the ordinary Congress, the company may rest assured that the legitimate representatives of the Colombian nation will never give their consent to this transaction.

Being certain that I am faithfully interpreting the wish of my constituents and of the great majority of the Colombian people, being equally certain that the revolution will be vietorious in two months at the most, and not wishing the French company to lose any money that they may yow deliver to the Government at Bogota, I wish to warn them in time that they may be on gnard against the schemes of the unprincipled clique that surrounds the old President of the tottering regime.

"I am, of course, aware of the fact that governments are considered continuous in their existence and solitary in their responsibilities. This is no doubt the principle depended upon by the company in its present undertaking. But the company in its present undertaking. But the company is hould not forget that there is another principle which, in Colombia, is recognized as constitutional, namely, the right of revision by a new Government of the acts of its predecessor. What was illegal and valid under the former can never be legal and valid under the latter. So that if the diy of revision comes, as it undoubtedly will, let not the Canal company allege its ignorance of the true state of affairs, nor bring forth expenses already incurred and payments already made. This document explains the actual state of affairs. Later on Colombia will decide what is best for her to do. Al present it concerns the company, before disbursing its millions, to become posted do. At present it concerns the company disbursing its millions, to become posted regarding this important matter.

EGG THIEF CAUGHT IN THE PARK

A watch was set for the egg thieves, and yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock Keeper "Don't you want to hold them as evidence at the prisoner's trial?" the Magistrate responded.
"If he does he will have to make the charge one of stealing ducks, and not eggs, for they are near hatching," said the parkkeeper.
"We haven't any place at the station for ducks," continued the policeman.
"Give the eggs to the keeper then, and let the man be tried on your affidavit," announced the Magistrate. The keeper took the eggs back to the Park.

QUEEN'S BEQUEST ILLEGAL.

HONOLULU, May 13, via San Francisco, May 20.—By decision of the Supreme Court the Queen's Hospital, founded by Queen Emma, loses practically all its property, valued at several thousand dollars. When Dr. Rooke, Queen Emma's father, died, he left the greater part of his large fortune to her on condition that if she died without issue the estate would revert to his nephew and godson Capt. C. K. C. Rooke of England.

Queen Emma had one son, the little Prince of Hawali, but he died in childhood years before his mother died. His birth was assumed to fulfill the conditions of the will and Queen Emma left most of her property to Queen's Hospital, which has done great good. Suit was brought by Dr. Rooke's nephew and the court holds that it was clearly Dr. Rooke's intention that unless Queen Emma had living Issue at her death the property should go to his nephew. This nephew lives in England and has never visited Hawaii. The estate includes much valuable property in Honolulu. Queen Emma's father, died, he left the greater

BOYS STOLE MUMMERS' RIGS. Paraded in Costume Until Arrested for Bl ing Fifth Avenue.

Five boys on the far West Side read in the newspapers last week of two boys having been arrested for breaking into the old Sixth avenue car stables at Forty-third street and Sixth avenue and stealing a lot of theatrical costumes that had been stored there. These five boys did not want to steal anything, but the reading of that paragraph opened up for them glorious possibilities in the way of a lark. They matured their plans and yesterday they put them into execution.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon they suc ceeded in getting into the building unobserved. They made their way to the third floor to a room filled with theatrical costumes and properties that have been used in extravaganzas a the New York Theatre. There they arrayed themselves, one as a ballet girl and the rest with whatever was handy, including grease paints and swords. They marched down Sixth avenue to Forty-second street, forming a hollow square with the ballet girl in the centre. Going east in Forty-second street they had a crowd of east in Forty-second street they had a crowd of fifty people after them and this increased as they drew nearer to Flifth avenue. At that thoroughfare they turned north. At the corner of Forty-fourth street they stopped and the boy in the tights began to dance. The crowd appiauded and the people who were driving past stopped to see the fun. This caused a blockade in the street and Roundsman McLaughlin and three policemen came up on a run.

McLaughlin and three policemen came up on a run.

At the sight of the brass buttons the five boys separated and fled. They were all easily captured. They were taken to the East Fifty-first street station where they said they were John Joseph, 12 years old, of 458 West Forty-first street; Frank Hoiman, 13 years old, of 405 West Fortieth street; Edward Spellman, 14 years old, of 519 West Forty-first street; William Binger, 12 years old, of 403 West Forty-first street. When the police told them that they were held as burglars, they wept. George Langler of the New York Theatre arrived at the station, gave the boys a scolding and told them he was going to send them to prison for atleast twenty years. When they were properly humble and yowed that they would never, never do such a thing again, he told the police that he did not think the boys had meant to steal anything and that he would not press any charge against them. The police got for the boys their own clothing and they were allowed to wash off the grease paints in the rear room of the station.

FOR M. G. A. CHAMPIONSHIP

HARRIMAN'S WORK CUT OUT TO RETAIN THE FIRST PLACE.

Anticipations Regarding the Big Event of the Week at Nassau Country Club-Players Who Will Receive a Good Chance on Their Best Game-Women on the Links.

"Entries for the championship are arriving in a most satisfactory way," was the report of Secretary Du Fais of the M. G. A. on Saturday, and he added that he would hold the list for revision until late this afternoon. Until all who are to play is known there is not much use of guessing on the outcome of the event so far as the chance of any particular player goes. It is evident, however, that to defend with success the title he won last April at Garden City H. M. Harriman will have to play the game of his life. He is a golfer who rises to great emergencies, and, while his public game this year has not been brilliant, it must not be forgotten that in beating F. S. Douglas, in the amateur championship, and A. W. Smith, in the international team match, Harriman last summer took the measure of two of the best all-around amateur golfers on this continent. With a little luck Harriman may repeat. Looking over the sixteen who qualified in 1899, the most dangerous on this year's play are easily F. S. Douglas Walter J. Travis, H. B. Hollins, Jr., and Howard A. Colby. Each has proven more than once that he is on his game. J. A. Tyng and A. M. Robbins, who also qualifled last year, seem the most formidable after the quartet named, but neither has been at his best in public this spring. Others to be considered on their recent form, who were not of the elect last year, are Meriden show that a blight appears to have John Reid, Jr., Devereaux Emmet, R. C. Wat-

Meriden show that a blight appears to have struck the trout hatcheries in that neighborhood. At the Bipe Hills hatchery 700,000 young trout were hatched this year. Of this number 100,000 were sold as trout fry and the remaining 800,000 are about all dead. When they were taken from the hatching house and put into pools surplied from a different spring they seemed to teel the change. The bulk of the 800,000 fish died within three days seemed to teel the change. The bulk of the 800,000 fish died within three days seemed to teel the change. The bulk of the 800,000 fish died within three days seemed to teel the change the bulk of the pool surplied by open spring, are dead. At floxie shatchery in Manches er all of this year's hatchings, except those in a pool surplied by open spring, are dead. At floxie shatchery in Rinde Island so many of the young frout died this year that they could not sell any to the Riue Hills hatchery.

The only explanation of this condition of affairs is that the springs dried up last year and when they started to run again they contained sadiment which was injurious to the little fish. The older trout seem unaffected.

Golf promises to out-do muskallonge fishing as the sporting craze in the Thousand I-lands. The rage began last summer and it is still rampant. The latest links is on Well's Island, which, with the neighboring Heart Island, is owned by George C. Boldt A club has been organized, called the Thousand Island Yacht and Golf Club, and Mr. Boldt and J. H. Oliphant are the Greens Committee. The course has just been laid out by George Low, the Dyker Meadow "pro" and it has been oplanned regardless of expense. It will be an eighteen hole links, nine to be ready by July 1. The turf would be hard to beat. The putting greens are almost all natural. There is a narrow stream to be crossed three times and from the tenth tee, the highest point of the links, there is a fine view of the water and the Canada shore. Near the first tee and last green a handsome clubhouse is being built in the midst of apple and maple trees. A putting links will be laid out near this grove. The course will be about 5,500 yards.

An active season has been planned by the New Brunswick Golf Club. It will begin on Saturday with a mixed four-some on the home links and a team match at Trenton. The scheduled events will carry the season up to the middle of November. Teamunatches have been arranged with Flushing and Plainfield and others will be booked.

Sam Fitzpatrick sprung a surprise at the Greenwood A. C. on Saturday night in Bill Hanrahan, the middle weight from the New West Side A. C. Hanrahan's opponent was Kid Carter, of Brooklyn, who recently knocked Andy Walsh out, the latter standing Joe Walcott off for 20 rounds. On the strength of this Carter was made a hot favorite at 2 to 1 and the betting was lively. Hanrahan never was in danger and after one of the wickedest fights of the season he put the Kid to sleep in the twelth round. Hanrahan's punching powers were greatly in evidence. Sam has matched Hanrahan to meet "Dido" Plumb at the National Sporting Club. London, next September for the middleweight championship of England.

The show started with a ten round bout between Tommy Moran of Brooklyn and Harry Murtha of New York at 130 pounds. Both were evenly matched in point of science, but Moran seemed to be the harder hitter. The referee declared Moran the victor. Jimmy Doran of Brooklyn and Jack Dorman of New York then came on for ten rounds at 122 pounds. Dorman cut out the pace and had his man in such a bad way before the first round ended that Doran's seconds jumped into the ring to save him. Dorman received the verdict. . The latter refused to box, saying Creede was over weight. After a long wrangle Tommy White of Brooklyn was substituted for Creede. He gave a poor exhibition. Loeber punched him at will and asked the referee to stop the bout, as he did not want to kill his opponent. This was done and Loeber got the verdict. Kid Reilly of Brooklyn and Tommy Hallof New York met for ten rounds at 118 pounds. Reilly was disqualified in the fourth round. Maxey Haugh of South Brooklyn and Billy Barrett of New York met for fifteen rounds at 122 pounds. Barrett was over weight and Haugh got the forfeit money. The bout went the limit and was declared a draw. Then came Tommy Sullivan of South Brooklyn and Jack Lowery of New York, They clasped hands for fifteen rounds at 122 pounds. The decision went to Sullivan on points.
